The business model that felled what was once the world's biggest renewable energy company is alive and making money in Britain.

Listed funds using the yieldco model are outperforming the FTSE All-Share Index on a risk-adjusted return basis, according to research from Imperial College.

“Yieldco” had almost become a dirty word after SunEdison Inc.’s bankruptcy in 2016. The strategy involves listing a fund on a stock exchange and using the capital raised to buy operating solar and wind farms. Cash from electricity sales is paid out to shareholders as dividends.
